

Arthur H. ... papers

Boston Daily Advertiser, Sept. 10, 1874.

"Yesterday being the centennial anniversary of the passage of the Suffolk Resolves, a meeting was held in the evening in the old house in Dorchester where the delegates met."

Boston Journal, Sept. 10, 1874.

"The centennial anniversary of the adoption of the famous 'Suffolk Resolves' was observed privately last evening in the parlors of the old Vose mansion in Milton where they were first presented by Gen. Joseph Warren."

Boston Post, Sept. 10, 1874.

"A little celebration took place in Milton last evening in commemoration of the adoption of the Suffolk Resolves, so called, claimed to be the initiation of measures for the Declaration of Independence. Representatives from various towns in the county, including townsmen in Norfolk County, met at Doty's in Stoughton, adjourned to Woodward's in Dedham for a more full representation, when a committee on Resolutions was appointed of which Joseph Warren was chairman. On the 9th of September, 1774, these representatives met at the house of Daniel Vose in Milton where the Resolves were passed and were then sent to the Provincial Congress at Philadelphia.

A few persons in the neighborhood in Dorchester and Milton, unwilling to have the event pass unnoticed, got up the meeting last evening without any heralding, and it was held in the same room in the house where the Suffolk Resolves were passed.

Hon. Henry L. Pierce presided at this meeting, but as the room in which the meeting was held was but small no invitations were extended to the public and but small notice was expected by the press. The Suffolk Resolves were read by Edward L. Pierce and addresses were made by James M. Robbins & N. T. Safford. The old house is next the railroad depot in Milton and was decorated with flags. On the outside is an inscription on a tablet as follows and in the entry there is a framed copy of the Resolves: " ———"